QuantiFi 2026 Wiki

Hello! Thank you for participating in UTEFA's QuantiFi competition.

You'll find everything you need to get up to speed on QuantiFi. If you have any questions, check the Discord or @ one of the execs for help!

In this Google Doc, you'll find information about the competition format on this tab. On the other tab, you can find information about how to write your Python algorithm.

Competition Format

Key Dates

Date	Event
Oct 24, 5-6 PM	Online meeting via Zoom to introduce competition
Nov 1, 11:59 PM	Every team lead must submit their abstract and trader Python file through the Google Form.
Nov 3	Teams selected to go present in person will be contacted.
Nov 5, 5-8 PM	Selected teams will present in person to judges from the National Bank of Canada and CPP Investments. Top 2 teams selected by the judge will go present at National Bank's headquarters to a larger panel of judges, with networking opportunities with talent acquisition and traders.

Judging

Judging will be done in two rounds. The first round is submitting your Python file. The second round is the invite-only in-person round. Each round will be judged along slightly different criteria.

First Round Judging:

1. Breadth: Does your team trade all products or just a few, and are your strategies all different?
2. Depth: How good is your modelling or strategy for trading each product? Did you go sufficiently in depth to capture all nuances or patterns of each product?
3. Communication: Overall quality of your abstract.
4. PnL: Profit and Loss of your algorithm on OOS data.

Criteria 1 and 2 will be judged in both your abstract and code, while criteria 3 is only for your abstract and criteria 4 is only in your algorithm. A low PnL does not automatically reject you from being selected to go present to National Bank, we also reserve spots for best abstracts!

We judge this way as a proxy to determine your team's communication skills, as those matter a lot when you're pitching to judges from National Bank (they care very much!) We encourage you to add images, plots, diagrams or other visuals to help support your abstract.

Although you have to produce an abstract, we strongly recommend you make a slideshow when you present to judges from National Bank.

Second Round Judging details will be released closer to Nov 5.

Abstract Details

Your abstract should be no more than 5 pages. This is a limit, and we certainly don't expect you to have 5 pages. Being able to clearly explain your strategy in one page is stronger than having 5 pages of pure slop. The 5 page limit exists to encourage the use of visuals rather than pure text.

Your abstract should contain your team number and team members at the top of the first page.
